2 In 1993, the pressure group 'Uncaged' proposed a 'Universal Declaration of Animal Rights'. This states that animals should not be made to suffer 'exploitation or oppression in the name of science or sport, or for use as food, for commercial profit or for other human ends'.

Adoption of this principle in the United Kingdom would have far-reaching consequences for our society, including negative ones.

BRIEFLY outline ONE arguably negative consequence in EACH of the scientific, social and cultural domains. [10]

3 Read the source below, about the films of Steven Spielberg, and answer the question that follows.

‘A director whose films have grossed $8.5 billion is obviously incapable of making a weak movie. ‘Jaws’, ‘Jurassic Park’ and ‘ET’, despite being his most popular films, are by no means as bad as you might expect. But when ‘Saving Private Ryan’ was beaten by Harvey Weinstein’s ‘Shakespeare in Love’ to the Best Picture Oscar in 1999, it showed that winning Oscars is actually about clever publicity, and not about the quality of the actual movies involved.’

Each of the sentences in the source contains false assumptions.

Identity THREE false assumptions, one from each sentence, and say briefly why EACH ONE is false. [10]

4 Read the source below and answer the question that follows.

‘Reality TV is vulgar and shoddy. By creating pseudo-celebrities it contributes to the debasement of popular taste. It is often cruel, exposing the participants to gross humiliation for our amusement. This makes it the modern equivalent of going to laugh at the lunatics in Bedlam. It exploits the vulnerable, and has been condemned by the Mental Health Foundation for doing so. Popularity should not be the ultimate test of what is permissible. Public executions used to be popular and still are in some countries. It is nonsense to say that broadcasters shouldn’t set standards or be obliged to adhere to codes of behaviour. We don’t for instance allow them to promote racism or sectarianism, or to incite violence. Reality TV is debasing and should be strictly controlled, if not banned altogether.’

In defence of Reality TV, argue against FOUR of the claims made in this source. [20]

SECTION B

Answer ONE question from this section.
Your answer should be in continuous prose.

- 5 In the early 1980s, Morrissey, the singer of the British band The Smiths, was asked why his group chose to make social and political comment in their pop music. He answered:

“We feel that popular music should be used to make serious statements because so many groups sell masses and masses of records and don’t raise people’s level of consciousness in any direction. We find that quite sinful, especially in these serious times.”

With reference to TWO art forms, evaluate the notion that the arts should offer commentary on social and political issues.
[50]

- 6 “Religion survives because it answers three questions that every reflective person must ask. Who am I? Why am I here? How then shall I live?”
[former Chief Rabbi Jonathan Sacks]

To what extent is this view reflected in the ways in which people conduct their lives in the society in which you live?
[50]

7 Read the case study below and answer the question that follows.

‘Paul Tate was a patient of Dr Clare Pye for twelve years. They had a very close professional relationship and she described him as a man of total integrity.

At 74, Paul was diagnosed with an illness for which the treatment had a likely success rate of only 25%. He refused the treatment, informing Dr Pye that he wished to die at a time of his choosing, avoiding pain and loss of dignity. Paul requested barbiturate tablets, complaining of insomnia. Dr Pye prescribed the drugs and informed Paul of the recommended and fatal doses.

Paul called all his friends, including Dr Pye, to say goodbye. Two days later he used the barbiturates to take his own life.’

Evaluate the actions of Paul Tate and Dr Clare Pye with reference to issues of the law, professional ethics and personal morality. [50]

Write the number of the question answered in the margin.

ADDITIONAL ANSWER SPACE

If additional answer space is required, you should use the following lined page. The question number(s) must be clearly shown in the margin.
