General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

Level 1 (0-3 marks)	Weak ability to construct and communicate coherent arguments, making little or no use of appropriate vocabulary

No. 8	ernment policies since 1997 have been very successful in reducing crime.' Discuss.
Indicative content (this is not an exhaustive account of relevant points)
Candidates should demonstrate an understanding of that there are at least three viewpoints on the extent to which crime has been reduced and the extent to which the government can take credit: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• One viewpoint is that crime has fallen over the past two decades, but that this is not primarily due to government initiatives but to other factors such as improved security of cars and homes (industry and families taking the credit) and to demographic trends with fewer young men aged 15-25 who are responsible for committing the majority of crimes</li> <li>• Another viewpoint is that government initiatives have had a substantial effect, particularly the substantially increased resources for police forces and the vast expansion of the use of CCTV.</li> <li>• A third view is that there has been no reduction of crime, with crime statistics being used to obscure the fact that the UK has become more dangerous and its people progressively more insecure</li> </ul>
AO1	Knowledge and understanding
