Source MaterialCriminal Attempts Act 1981

- (1) If, with intent to commit an offence to which this section applies, a person does an act which is more than merely preparatory to the commission of the offence, he is guilty of attempting to commit the offence.
- (2) A person may be guilty of attempting to commit an offence to which this section applies even though the facts are such that the commission of the offence is impossible.
- (3) In any case where—
 - (a) apart from this subsection a person's intention would not be regarded as having amounted to an intent to commit an offence; but
 - (b) if the facts of the case had been as he believed them to be, his intention would be so regarded, then, for the purposes of subsection (1) above, he shall be regarded as having had an intent to commit that offence.

R v Gullefer (1990)

G had placed an £18 bet on a greyhound race. Seeing that his dog was losing, he climbed onto the track in front of the dogs, waving his arms and attempting to distract them, in an effort to get the stewards to declare 'no race', in which case he would get his stake back. G was unsuccessful in this endeavour but he was prosecuted for attempted theft and convicted. The Court of Appeal quashed his conviction. G's act was merely preparatory. In order to have 'embarked on the crime proper' the Court thought that G would have to go to the betting office and demand his money back.

R v Shivpuri (1987)

S was arrested by customs officers while in possession of a suitcase which he believed to contain prohibited drugs. After his arrest he told the officers that he was dealing in prohibited drugs. However, on analysis, the substance in the suitcase was found to be not drugs but harmless vegetable matter. S was charged under the Criminal Attempts Act 1981 with attempting to commit the offence of being knowingly concerned in dealing with and harbouring prohibited drugs. S was convicted of both offences and the convictions upheld by the House of Lords.

- (b) In June 2012 Sarah was 21 years old and was desperate for money as her learning difficulties meant that she could not keep a job. Sarah broke into a house where Florence, an 80 year old lady, was in the kitchen. Sarah tied Florence up and hit her on the head with a heavy pan several times. Florence died of her injuries and Sarah was convicted of her murder.

The next day Udoka followed Amir and another man to the local park. Udoka stabbed and killed both men with a knife that he always carried. Unknown to Udoka, the man with Amir was an off-duty plain clothes police officer. Udoka was convicted of two counts of murder.
