The 2012 Olympic games will be another reason to call this country great - it will be with our English history for ever. I have no ~~do~~<sup>about</sup> doubt that we will win as we only came 3rd in 2008, and that wasn't even in our own country.

Also I have had a lot of thought about the audience for the games - in our time of day riots are happening all the time and a lot of them are in England. A lot of people of the younger generation are becoming more interested in sport and will mean that the Olympics will be a momentous time period.

I believe that in the audience they should have sections for their own countries, so they can talk to English people in England's section, and Spanish people can talk to other Spanish people in Spain's section.

In conclusion I hope the 2012 Olympics will be a very special time and go down in the history books for ever more.
