

Q7 Script Y

Write your answer to Section B Question (a) here:

In The given extract is take from the novel 'Of Mice and Men' written by John Steinbeck. In the given extract Curley's wife is 'shown as if she is mean and ~~also we can~~ racist or some what we can see is that she discriminates people. Not only that we can see that she is very good at counter attack like thing when she scolds Crooks and Candy when they were about to ~~also~~ disclose her truth to the boss. 'listen nigger' she said. "You know what I can do to you if you open your trap" This shows that when she tells Crook Nigger she is seen as if she is being ~~racist~~ racist. She also warns ~~len~~ Crook that what she can do to him if he opens his mouth because she is Curley's wife and she has some authority as well. "I could get you shing up on a tree so easy it aint even funny" she tells Crook that she could do ~~do~~ such a bad thing to him so easily because he ~~was~~ was black. During those days (1930's) black were still dominated by white people so Curley's wife could have easily do something terrible to Crook. "Nobody's listen to you an' you know it" She tells this to Candy when he tries to support Crooks but as Candy being a normal ranch worker he had no power to stop Curley's wife.

Write your answer to Section B Question (b) here:

In the extract when Curley's wife heads inside crook barn the author Steinbeck mentions that Crooks to stand up and facing at Curley's wife he shoots at her coldly for coming in colored man's room. "Crooks stood up from his bunk and faced her. 'I had enough,' he said coldly. 'You got no rights comin' in a colored man's room.'" In this line the author mention coldly this means he is very crook is very angry at her and here colored man represent black person. At those time there was tension between black and white people so the writer's author wants us to know that white + * and black people would not get along each other at that time. He also mention stood up which means that Crooks was really mad at her. We also stand up when we are too angry or happy. "Crooks seemed to grow smaller, and he pressed himself against wall" then afterwards "Crooks had reduced himself to nothing". When Curley's wife starts to threaten him that what she could do because they had the difference of race then Crook suddenly cools down and releases all of his strength as if no energy was left with him and backs off. here grow smaller and pressed him against wall means he was scared by Curley's wife's mean words and he moved back. The author also uses that Crooks reduced himself to nothing which means that he was so scared that he was completely out of power and tried to hide his not to fight back just lying sad and completely still. Lennie also wishes that George was here "I wish George was here". We know that George was like some hero to Lennie who could help him out of problem.

Write your answer to Section B Question (c) here:

* "Of Mice and Men" is a famous novel written by John Steinbeck. The author mentions the harsh condition for people going through people's life due to the depression which occurred during early 1920's-1940's due to "world street crash". As Steinbeck was practical sufferer of these harsh time he was quite aware about what was going through people's life and published this novel. In this novel we come across through various theme such as friendship, loneliness, dream etc., discrimination, violence etc.

Violence is also one of the major theme of this novel. According to the author the harsh environment had affected every people's life so much that people started being mean and aggressive for no appropriate reason. For example we can take Curley. Curley being boss's son was very mean and aggressive he was very harsh nature. We can know all this because from the moment he saw Lennie and George for the first time he was very cold towards them even when they had done nothing wrong to provoke his anger. "His eyes passed over the new men and he stopped. He glared coldly at George and then Lennie. We know that when people are on something and suddenly stop and watch coldly in someone we then we find that something wrong is going on person's head. Here the writer mentions coldly to show the mean and envious behavior of Curley. "His arms gradually bent at the elbows and his hand closed into fists" This shows from here we can understand that Curley was acting as if he was about to start a fight. We know that when any person gets angry or about to fight then we automatically close our hands ^{and turn it} into fist. Now we already begun to think as if Curley was going to do something bad to them. It was as if foreshadow of Curley act towards Lennie.

Once Candy had mentioned that Curley absolutely hate big guys. "He hate big guys". We know that lots of short people are usually mean ~~less~~ when they see big guys ~~as~~ because either they are jealous of their height or some thing else. As Lennie was a big guy it was certain that Curley hated big guys. So it was after almost ~~sure~~ sure that Curley was going to mess up with Lennie. One day when Curley was mad with Slim re due to his wife's incidence he could do nothing to Slim but finally got chance to fight with Lennie. He when he saw Lennie laughing he got misconception and thought Lennie was laughing at his problem. "Come on, ya big bastard. Get up on your feet. No big son-of-a-bitch is gonna laugh at me" It is in human nature that we get angry and be suspicious on someone when they are laughing when we are in trouble. Even though we try to comfort ourself by saying that they are not laughing at us but we can't deny that and we all get angry. Then after that everything goes wrong and the fight which Curley had intended to accomplish occurs and finally contributes in the violence theme of the play.

From this violence we know that no one can predict what or when we ~~a~~ will experience the same thing when the time is bad. Though the play was written in early days but it is still relevant ~~in~~ ^{with} present days.