Section B

Option 4: Peace, War and Neutrality: Britain, Northern Ireland and Ireland, 1932–1949

Answer all questions

10 Source A: An extract from a History textbook, explaining the role of naval and air bases in Northern Ireland during the Second World War.

Northern Ireland with its ports played a key role in the Battle of the Atlantic as it was well placed to protect the sea lanes between Britain and America. The position of Northern Ireland gave protection to ships carrying supplies to Liverpool and Glasgow. Air bases in Northern Ireland provided important cover for Atlantic convoys.

(a) (i) Study Source A

Using Source A and your own knowledge, describe how Northern Ireland's naval and air bases contributed to the British war effort. [6 marks]

Source B: A photograph showing damage to High Street in Belfast, following an attack by the Luftwaffe, May 1941.

Photograph removed due to Copyright restrictions

(ii) Study Source B

Using Source B and your own knowledge, explain the effects of the German Blitz on Belfast in 1941.
[9 marks]

Source C: An extract from the British government's response to the Irish Constitution, 1937.

His Majesty's government believes that the new constitution does not bring a great change to the position of the Irish Free State. The new constitution does not change our relationship with Dublin. As far as we are concerned the Irish Free State will stay part of the Commonwealth.

(iii) Study Source C

Source C suggests that the British government believed that the 1937 Irish Constitution did not bring “a great change to the position of the Irish Free State”.

How far do you agree with the view that the 1937 Irish Constitution did not change relations between the Irish Free State and Britain? Explain your answer using Source C and your own knowledge.
[12 marks]

(b) In what ways did the terms of the Anglo-Irish Agreements of 1938 affect relations between Britain and Éire? [6 marks]

(c)

In this question 5 additional marks are available for your use of spelling, punctuation and the accurate use of grammar.

“Living standards were much better in Northern Ireland than in Éire in the period 1945 to 1949”. Do you agree? Explain your answer. [17 marks and SPaG 5 marks]

Option 5: Changing Relationships: Britain, Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland, 1965–1985

Answer all questions

11 Source A: Photograph of a row of houses in Bombay Street, Belfast, August 1969.

Photograph removed due to Copyright restrictions

(a) (i) Study Source A

Using Source A and your own knowledge, describe how violence increased in Northern Ireland in the summer of 1969. [6 marks]

Source B: A modern historian's view on why Terence O'Neill and his policies were opposed by some unionists and nationalists in Northern Ireland in the 1960s.

O'Neill and his policies were not popular with everyone. Many within the Official Unionist Party thought he was making too many concessions. A new, younger generation of educated Catholics felt that O'Neill had good intentions, but was too slow in taking real action. Nationalists believed that his economic policies were helping to make Protestant areas more prosperous and ignoring Catholic areas.

(ii) Study Source B

Using Source B and your own knowledge, explain why some people in Northern Ireland were opposed to O'Neill and his policies in the 1960s. [9 marks]

Source C: A modern historian writing about the Hunger Strikes of 1980 and 1981.

The Hunger Strikes were a success for nationalists, but a failure for the British government. The British handling of the whole H-block situation was disastrous and politically this was a difficult time for the government. The Hunger Strikes and the British government's response did more to unite nationalist opinion than any other single event since Bloody Sunday in 1972.

(iii) Study Source C

Source C states that the Hunger Strikes of 1980 and 1981 were a “success for nationalists, but a failure for the British government”.

How far do you agree with the view that the Hunger Strikes were a success for nationalists and a failure for the British government? Explain your answer using Source C and your own knowledge.

[12 marks]

(b) In what ways did the government of Northern Ireland and the unionist people respond to the civil rights movement between August 1968 and January 1969? [6 marks]

(c)

In this question 5 additional marks are available for your use of spelling, punctuation and the accurate use of grammar.

“The people of Northern Ireland did not want power-sharing to work in 1973 and 1974”.

Do you agree? Explain your answer.

[17 marks and SPaG 5 marks]
