Control and monitoring

Feedback reporting will analyse where the business is deviating from the plan, reasons can be analysed and appropriate action taken to minimise losses.

Planning

Budgeting forces organisations to look ahead and engage with the difficult task of planning. Difficult as this is, it does anticipate problems and their solutions leading to better responses than would arise if problems were just dealt with as they occurred.

Co-ordination

Business organisations can be large and complex. Budgeting compels all sections to come together to agree how they will work collectively thus ensuring that the whole organisation works to the same plan and in an efficient way

Communication

Budgeting allows the objectives of the organisation to be clearly communicated to its employees, and defines a known framework for effective decision-making.

Efficiencv

Budgeting delegates financial control to those workers best able to make decisions throughout the business.

Motivation

Budgeting provides workers with targets and standards which should encourage them to work harder to achieve or exceed expectations

Allocation of Resources

StudentBounty.com Budgeting determines which parts of the organisation receive what allocation of resources. This is done in advance in a considered and organised way; it should ensure that the best returns are achieved from the limited resources available.
