TURKISH 7646, CHIEF EXAMINER'S REPORT

Turkish O Level has continued to be a success this year. The number of candidates taking the exam has increased steadily over the years, and 2001 was no exception. The 2001 Turkish question paper was of the highest standard. The success rate of the candidates was, on the whole high, with the majority of those who were entered for the exam, obtaining grades A or B.

It was extremely pleasing for the examiners to be able to award such high marks for candidates' work. It was also very rewarding to see non-native Turkish candidates obtaining much higher results in comparison with earlier years. The hard work of the candidates and centres is fully recognised and appreciated.

Turkish examinations at Edexcel International will continue to be set with high quality and high standards in mind, but at the same time ensuring that the examinations are accessible to all candidates of O Level standard. It is hoped that both the examination results and the popularity of the subject will continue to increase over the years.
