The Courage of Alexander the Great

The Macedonians, soldiers of King Alexander, had been attacked by barbarians and many were taken prisoner.

Macedones, qui e castris exierunt ut pabulum peterent, a barbaris oppugnantur qui de proximis montibus decurrerunt. plures capti sunt quam occisi. deinde barbari in montes captivos secum duxerunt.

Alexander attacked the barbarians. He was wounded.

5 viginti milia barbarorum aderant, qui fundis sagittisque pugnare parabant. rex Alexander fortiter eos oppugnabat, inter primos milites pugnans. sagitta vulneratus est, quae in crure spiculum reliquit.

The Macedonians were upset about Alexander's injury. The barbarians were anxious to find out how seriously Alexander was wounded.

10 tristes et attoniti Macedones regem in castra referebant. sed barbari, qui ex summo monte omnia conspexerant, postero die miserunt legatos ad regem. Alexander, solutis fasciis, crus barbaris ostendit. vulnere viso, barbari, magnam virtutem regis admirati, intellexerunt se numquam Macedones vincere posse.

Surprisingly the barbarians decided to punish the person responsible, and to surrender.

barbari dixerunt se tristiores esse quam Macedones ipsos; si auctorem invenire possent, se eum punituros esse. Alexander, captivis receptis, barbarorum ditionem accepit.

inter primos milites (line 5) — on the front line
